THE COMPSCATION MILL.
The Confiscation bill was taken up.
Mr. McDoccatt, (opp.) of Cal., proceeded to speak at tength on the Confiscation bill. He referred to the condition of the country, and claimed that all desired the return of pace, but peace was not to be obtained by subjugation and by the principles would only perpetuate a releations war, which must result in extipation before we could have peace. He referred to the counsels of elemency to the enemies by the ancient Grocian and Roman statesmen; he also quoted from modern authors on international law—Vattet, Grocials, &c.—in favor of clemency, and against the destruction of private property. He claim ancient Grocian and Roman statesmen; he also quoted from modern authors on international law—Vattet, Grotius, &c.—in favor of clemency, and against the destruction of private property. He claimed that the policy of this government and the counsels of the greatest and best men of the country were opposed to confication. He referred to the inaugural of the President, and his instructions to the Secretary of State, as in favor of clemency. He said the bill was in violation of all international law, and no such not was ever passed by civilized nations. The general usage of the civilized world was not to touch private property of land, and such usage characterized this government in the Moxican war. He said that the people of this country had as much right to the privileges of war as any other country. He contended further that the bill was unconstitutional, as it was a bill of attainder and a bill of attainder without a parallel in history operating on the whole class of the people, not against a few individuals, as cases of attainder in England. It was a bill to sent against of the government out to seize the property of millions of people, without proceeding before any court. Nothing was so disastrous to the country as to organize an army of informers to scour the country to pry out property to seize on. Such a police as this would never cure the evil. It would only make a large body of desperate men. Every true man who ever tasted freedom would rather die than to submit to such degradation. He country, without foar.

The committee were also engaged some time on the currency question, including the Treasury Note bill. The tax subjact was referred to a sub-committee, who worked as assiduously as possible during every hour they were not engaged in the House. He believed they had worked more hours every day since that time than any laborer mechanic or manufacturer in the United States. When the sub-committee completed their labors the entire Committee of Ways and Means had gone over the hill carefully, article by article, item by item, until they adopted its their unaulmous report. He did not ask any commendation for the committee, but desired that when the subject came to be considered and reviewed benevolent insulgence may be extended to them. given rise to the discussion of maritime rights by the principal Powers of the world, all interested in their authoritative actiement, and in that discussion the friendly offices of the Emperor of France were tendered to the United States for the purpose of adjusting the question involved on a clear and liberal basis, looking to the amelioration of the rights of neutrals upon the sea; therefore, be it.

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled,

First—That the mitional legislature acknowledges the friendly intentions and enlightened views of the Emperor of the French in said interposition.

Second—That it favors the most liberal propositions with respect to maritime rights, and the sobilition of such usages as restrict the liberty of neutrals and multiply the causes of dissensions in the world, believing that humanity and justice demand that the calamities incident to war should be strictly limited to the belligerent themselves, and to those who voluntarily take part with them; but that neutrals, abstaining in good faith from such complicity, ought to be left to pursue their ordinary trade with either belligerent.

Thirl—That the present time is propitious for the resumption of negotiations to secure these objects, and especially for the concurrence of the nations in the belligerent articles of the declarations of the Congress of Paris, of the 16th of April, 1856, with the amendment proposed by Mr. Marcy, viz:—

2. The neutral flag covers enemy's goods, with the exception of contraband of war,

3. Neutral goods, with the exception of contratand of war, are not liable to capture under the enemy's flag.

4. The blockade, in order to be binding, must be effective. Fow th—That the people of the United States entertain the hope that the great maritime Powers of France and England, relinquishing their present objections, growing out of their fill advised recognition of our insurgent States as belligerents, will consent to the propositions of the Paris Conference, as the United States have constantly invited, and as Mr. Marcy proposed to the government of France on the 28th day of July, 1856, with such a liberal expansion of them that the private property, not contraband, of citizens and subjects of nations in collision should be exempted from confincation equally in warfare waged on the land and in warfare waged upon the seas, which are the common highways of the nations.

SignA—That for the accomplishment of this result it would be both counteous and wise for our government to consider the proposal of the eminent publicist of France, M. Hauterfeille, for a Congress of the maritime Powers, which, by uniting in one body the scattered forces of all neutrals, may secure to each the respect and security which they cannot obtain while remaining isolated, and that thus they may be enabled to maintain as a lasting element of the law of nations that maritime equilibrium so long sought by the United States of America, and so important to the freedom of commerce and the repose of the world.

On motion of Mr. Cox, the resolutions were recommitted and ordered to be printed.

The public sition which the Colonel has held in Brooklyn (being a member of the Common Council for many years, and at present its President) has made him known to every person in the city, and the honest qualities which he has exhibited while holding those offices have given a wider scope for the appreciation and respect which the On the 18th of May last the Fourteenth regiment New

On the 1state Militia left Fort Greene, Brooklyn, en reute to Washington, their departure being the occasion of an enthusiastic and thrilling ovation. The prayers and blessings of thousands of weeping relatives followed them on their route, and the wish was expressed that, when enshrouded in the smoke of conflict, the Fourteenth would come out unsullied by the taint of cowardico or of flinching. The battle of Bull run, in which the Fourteenth bore so prominent and honorable a part, took place on the 21st of July, and on that memorable day Col. Wood, while gallantly leading on his men to the attack, was shot down by rebel bullets and borne bleeding from the field, a prisoner in the hands of Jeff. Davis' hirelings. The Colonel was first taken to Charlottesville, and from thence to Richmond, Va., where he has, until a few days past, been closely confined as a prisoner of war-It will also be remembered that Col. The appearance of the city yesterday from an early hour in the morning indicated that the hearts of the citizens were bent upon tendering a reception worthy of the occasion and the men. Nearly every house hung out the national colors, and the neighborhood of the City Hall was flooded with innignia and banners of all descriptions. Though the weather was unpropilious for the demonstration, yet it did not prevent the streets from being thronged with spectators, and every eye was bent and every heart jubilant with excitement to catch a glimpse of the gallant Colonel and his comrades, who had reflected so much credit upon the city of Brooklyn as well as the nation at large for true heroism and manly endurance. Every department in the city, public and private, was represented in the procession, and the popular voice swelled out the loud cheers of welcome as the cortege filed through the streets. Across the various thoroughfares were hung large banners, on which were inscribed various mottoes of welcome. Among them were the following:—

marching yesterday was quite severe; but nevertheless the military tooked remarkably well. There was a large turnout, and the Thirteenth regiment—one company of which acted as guard of honor upon the occasion—lost none of the prestige for appearance which it has attained in Brooklyn.

Colonel Wood, who was in a carriage drawn by four horses, the whole vehicle being wreathed in the Star Spangled Banner, tooked weak and careworn; but his eye has lost none of the lustre which has always characterized it. He must indeed have felt gratified at the greeting which he yesterday received from hisfellow citizens, though he was meek and composed, while everybody else around him seemed bursting with anxiety to do him honor. Though he has narrowly escaped with his life and saffered much from his wound, yet he has not lost that determined air which he has always borne. Every one gazed upon him with respect, and the valorous deeds which have made his name famous among us were the thome of every mouth. Filing into private streets from Atlantic, the display of bunting and inacripticus was not the less agreeable and general. Flags of all natious were bung out with the Stars and Stripes; and at No. 14 Harrison street a large green Hag, the national color of Ireland, was prominently displayed.

It was after six o'clock when the procession tiled down Willoughby street to the City Hall Fark, where it was reviewed by Colonel Wood. The Colonel them onleved the Hall and was conducted to the Counnil Chamber by his Honor Mayor Kalbfelsch. Colonel Wood, being Frasidant of the Common Council, on entering the room was placed in the chair, all the Aldermane of the portion of the galloun solder three times three cheers were given with a will. Cheers were also given for the privates of the game was coloned to address. The hamber was crowed dailes, and the prominents of the city of Brooklyn, to the home from which your absence cast a shadow of gloom, and to a community to whose greatedly intermed on the part of the regiment to a battle, for bra

Accompanying Colonel Wood were seven privates of the Fourteenth regiment, who had been taken prisoners and released at the same time with the Colonel. Their names are:—Erakine Rich, W. E. Ludden, Clinton Petit, Daniel McCauley, Nathaniel Lyon, William H. Campbell, George Rowler: They were present on the occasion, and took part in the procession.

Thus terminated the city of Brooklyn's tribute to her first and best soldier of the present war. No matter what may be the sneers of jealous politicians, the reception Colonel Wood received yesterday was, in every way, due the man and the soldier. That he did his duty to his country no one can doubt, and that he is now once more safe and sound almong us every honest heart should beat high with rejoicing. MR. GOTTSCHALK IN BROOKLYN .- Mr. Gottschalk's concer at the Brooklyn Academy of Music last night was not as crowded as it would have been if the weather had been more favorable. Many did not attend who had secured more favorable. Many did not attend who had secured seats. The brilliant pianist played several of his most admired compositions, and received several encores. The opera of "Betly" formed the bulk of the entertainment, Miss Hinkley, Brignoli and Susini being in the cast. All three played with great intrain, and were warmly aplauded throughout. It is to be regretted that Mr. Gottschalk will not be able to appear again in New York this week, arrangements having been made for his appearance in Washington on Thursday and Friday next. The next musical event will be the debut of Madame de Lussan, which will take place about the middle of this month, when Mr. Grau proposes to enter upon another short season of opera.

FINE ARIS .- A very fine three quarter oil portrait of the pianist Gottschalk is on exhibition at Goupil's. It is exceedingly happy in its manner of treatment, and is life-like in point of resemblance. The artist is Mr. L. J. Vornert.
